

I N D E X.

---

- ACADEMICS, discipline of the, 435; their doctrines, 350.
- Academy, the, 154, 155; orators of the, 155; manner of disputing in the, 164, et seq.; founded by Xenocrates, 349; New, founded by Arcesilas, 351.
- Accent, peculiarities of, 450.
- Accius, T. remarks on, 483.
- Achilles, the friend of Brutus, 109.
- Acting, points to be observed in, 361.
- Action, nature and principles of, 364; various questions relating to, 365; on the proper use of, 398; the speech of the body, 399; displays the movements of the soul, 399.
- Actor, not condemned for being once mistaken in an attitude, 174; emotions of the, 274, 275.
- Acts of a play, 21, et n.
- Aculeo, 2.1; his great knowledge of law, 194.
- Acusilas, the historian, 234.
- Admonition, how to be applied, 322.
- Ælius, Sextus, the Roman lawyer, 196, 201, 422; commentaries of, 211; his universal knowledge, 369; orations of, 449; remarks on, 461.
- Æmilianus, Africanus, an ironical jester, 302.
- Æmilius, M. 276; an eminent orator, 428.
- Ænigmas of metaphor, 380.
- Æschines, the orator, 155, 410; anecdote of, 395, 396.
- Æsop, the tragedian, 28.
- Æsopus, 218.
- Afius, C. 74.
- Afranius, the senator, 53.
- Afranius, M. the poet, 449.
- Agesilaus, acquisitions of, 372.
- Agitation, on commencing a speech, natural, 176.
- Agnation, law of, 187, et n.
- Agrian law, brought in by Julius Cæsar, 21.
- Ahenobarbus, Cn. D. the orator, 287, et n.
- Albinus, A. the historian and orator, 423; notices of, 439.
- Albucius, T. remarks on, 438.
- Alcibiades, works of, 246, et n.; his learning and eloquence, 371, 409.
- Alfius, the judge, 78.
- Alienus, the lieutenant of Q. Cicero, 6.
- Allegorical phraseology, use of, in oratory, 299.
- Allies, rights of, should be known to the orator, 182.
- Alpinus, S. orations of, 427.
- Ambiguity, every subject possesses the same susceptibility of, 364.
- Ambiguous words, plays on, 295, 296.
- Ἀμφίλαφία, abundance, 48.
- Anaxagoras, 371, 413; his ridiculous doctrine of black snow, 58.
- Anger, proneness to, 17, 18; disposition of Q. Cicero to, 25; feelings of, 280; assumes a particular tone of voice, 397.
- Anicius, 54; Cicero's opinion of, 74.
- Animal body, harmony and perfection of the, 384.
- Annalis, 73.
- Annius, T. an orator, 423.
- Antigenidas, the musician, 454.
- Antimachus, the poet, 456.
- Antipater, of Sidon, the poet, 389.
- Antipater, L. C. the historian, 235.
- Antiphon, the essayist, 413.
- Antiquity must be known by the orator, 182; study of, 194 et n., 195.
- Antisthenes, founder of the Cynics and the Stoics, 349.
- Antistius of Pyrgi, 307.
- Antistius, P. remarks on, 468.
- Antonius, C. 97.
- Antonius, Marcus, the friend of Cicero, 27; one of the orators of Cicero's Dialogues, 142, 149, 150, et seq.; prætor at Rhodes, 162; his visit to Athens, 164; his merits as an orator, 310, 440, 441; death of, 334.
- Antony, Caius, 107, et n.
- Antony, Mark, his political struggles on the death of Cæsar, 90, 91; letter of Brutus respecting, 92; the enemy of Cicero, 98, 112; named "the proconsul," 99; his partisans declared to be public enemies, 104; his defeat,

- 107, 119; flight of, 110; polluted with vice, 123; his dangerous power in Rome, 129—133; his tyranny and oppressions, 137; pronounced a public enemy, 139.
- Anxiety, feelings of, 280, 281.
- Ἄραξ ὀυεῖν*, a Greek proverb, 27.
- Apollonius, the orator of Alabanda, 174.
- Apollonius, the orator of Rhodes, 162.
- Appelles, the Greek painter, 420.
- Appian road, 9, et n.
- Appius, a friend of Cicero, 57, 81; his address, 58; wit of, 202.
- Appius, the elder, saying of, 306.
- Appius, the blind, an able speaker, 416.
- Appius Pulcher, consulship of, 55.
- Appollonia, people of, 26, 27.
- Aptitude and congruity of language, 346.
- Apuleian law, 251, et n.; 278.
- Apuleius commended by Brutus, 109.
- Apuleius, L. the orator, 467.
- Aquilius, M. his trial and acquittal, 255, et n.; defence of, 273, 275; remarks on, 467.
- Araus, the astronomical poet, 161.
- Arcanum, a village belonging to Q. Cicero, 51, 66.
- Arcesilas, founder of the New Academy, 351.
- Argument, three things requisite for finding, 263; different modes of conducting, 267, et seq.; the force of, to be resisted, 283; mode of arranging facts and topics of, 313, et seq.
- Arguments, the strongest to be maintained, 309.
- Aristippus, founder of the Cyrenaic philosophy, 349.
- Aristotle, 154, 157; his divine genius, 263; his acuteness of intellect, 266; founder of the Peripatetics, 349; his manner of discussing questions, 354; his system of teaching, 372; the tutor of Alexander, 372; his remarks on metrical quantities, 385, 386; nervous style of, 435.
- Arpinum, the birth-place of Cicero, 51, 66, 69.
- Arrius, notices of, 34, 474.
- Arsis, explanation of, 385, n.
- Art, how far necessary in oratory, &c. 176; not necessary to understand every art, 203; has no concern with wit, 288; harmony in the works of, 384, 385.
- Arts, attainments in the, 357.
- Arts and sciences, writers on the, must be read by the orator, 182; a knowledge of, essential to oratory, 193.
- Ascanio, 80.
- Asclepiades, the physician, 159.
- Asellus, jests on, 297, et n., 301.
- Asia Minor, Quintus Cicero's government in, 1, et seq.; Greeks of, 5, et n.; temptations to peculation in, 5, 6; beneficial effects of good government in, 12; relieved from the taxation of the Ædiles, 13.
- Athenians, 53.
- Athenians, learning among the, neglected, 343.
- Athenians, laws of, 208; the earliest records of eloquence there found, 408, 409; the early orators of, 409; rhetoricians of, 409.
- Attachment, law of, 189.
- Attalus, the Iphemian, 28.
- Attic, remarks on the word, 488, 489.
- Attic orators, 489, 490.
- Attica, the daughter of Atticus, 114, et n.
- Atticus, T. Pomponius, Cicero's letter to, respecting his brother, 30, 31; letter of Brutus to, 111; conference held with eminent orators, 404, et seq.; his abridgment of "Universal History," 405.
- Attius, the poet, 431, 469.
- Aufidius, T. remarks on, 452.
- Aulus, Gabinius, the consul, 22.
- Aurelian law, 34, et n.
- Autronius, P. remarks on, 473.
- BALBI, the two, 353.
- Balbus, 71; correspondence of, noticed, 57.
- Balbus, L. L. an able speaker, 445.
- Barrus, T. B. orations of, 449.
- Bequests, law of, 188, et n.
- Bestia, the tribune, 112; Cicero makes a speech in defence of, 45; notices of, 437.
- Bibulus, the consul, 2, 43, 44; resists the Agrarian law, 21.
- Bibulus, L. commended by Brutus, 109.
- Bibulus, M. notices of, 482.
- Bilienus, C. remarks on, 451.
- Bills of exchange, Cicero's questions respecting, 34.
- Blandus, in Phrygia, 23, et n.
- Books, Cicero's suggestions respecting the collecting of, 80.
- Bovillæ, 67.
- Breath, exercise of the, 181.
- Brevity, in a speech, 318; sometimes obtained by metaphor, 377, 378; sometimes a real excellence, 414.
- Bribery, provisions against, noticed, 34, et n.; candidates for the consulship impeached for, 76; charges of, 250.
- Briso, M. A. the tribune, 428.
- Britain, Q. Cicero's letters on, noticed, 65; Q. Cicero a resident of, 65, 71; Caesar's letter from, 75.
- Brutus, D. son of Marcus Brutus, 125, 431; honours proposed to, 126; remarks on, 451.
- Brutus, Lucius Junius, powers of his mind, 152; his great capacities, 415.
- Brutus, Marcus Junius, Cicero's letters to, 90, et seq.; his letters to Cicero, 92, 100, 106, 108, 109, 117, 128; his

- struggles on the death of Cæsar, 90; his letters differently arranged in different editions, 93, 94 n.; requires money and reinforcements, 93, 95; his military position, 98; his successes, 104, 106; military forces of, 110, 119; his letter to Atticus, 111; Cicero's advice to, 111; his high opinion of Cicero, 113, 114; his opinions of Octavius, 113; his retreat from Velia, 124; refuses to solicit the clemency of Octavius, and denies his regal authority, 128—133; Cicero's high encomium of, 133; his return to Rome advised by Cicero, 133, 134; his nephews, 135; witticisms of Crassus against, 285, 286; Cicero's conference with, on eminent orators, 402, et seq.; remarks on, 438, 451, 490; lamentations of Cicero at his political difficulties, 504; his diversified talents, 504, 505.
- Buffoon, what so ridiculous as a, 294.
- CÆCILIUS, the writer of comedies, 231, et n.
- Cæcilius, L. his character, 24.
- Cælius, C. remarks on, 448.
- Cælius, L. an elegant writer, 430.
- Cælius, M. high character of, 484.
- Cæpio, Q. the orator, 467; his trial and banishment; 276, et n.; remarks on, 439.
- Cæpion, the two, judgment and eloquence of, 428.
- Cæsa, meaning of, 286 n.
- Cæsar, C. the senator, 39.
- Cæsar, Julius, his political objects, 2; his contests, 21; brings in the Agrarian law, 21; the province of Cisalpine Gaul and Illyricum assigned to him, 22; Cicero's praises of, 57, 58; Cicero receives a flattering letter from, 60, 61; his British expedition, 65; his comments on Cicero's verses noticed, 65; his regard for the Ciceros, 69; losses sustained by, 72; death of his daughter Julia, 72 n.; writes from Britain to Cicero, 75; his goodwill towards Cicero, 82; state of parties on his death, 90; remarks on, 224, 225, 476, 478; his eloquence, 477; added all the various ornaments of elocution, 480.
- Cæsius, an officer of Q. Cicero, 8, 23, 67.
- Cæspasianus, C. and L. remarks on, 474.
- Cæsulanus, remarks on, 438.
- Caius, a common prænomen among the Romans; see passim.
- Calamis, the Greek sculptor, 420.
- Calidianus, C. C. remarks on, 474.
- Calidius, the advocate of Gabinius, 75; high character of, 484 485.
- Callisthenes, the Olynthian writer, 59, et n.; the historian, 236.
- Calpurnius, Piso, the consul, 22.
- Calventius, M. his speech noticed, 70.
- Calvinus, punning anecdote of, 293, et n.; notices of, 438.
- Calvus, punning on the word, 294.
- Calvus, C. L. high character of, 487, 488.
- Campania, lands in, 47.
- Canachus, the Greek sculptor, 420.
- Candavia, near Macedonia, 110.
- Caninius, 42.
- Canius, C. witty ingenuity of, 305.
- Canutius, remarks on, 461.
- Caunians, prefer paying taxes to the Romans instead of the Rhodians, 16.
- Capitation tax, difficulty of collecting at Rome, 135.
- Capito, L. 72.
- Capitol, design and beauty of the, 385.
- Capitoline College expels Marcus Furius Flaccus, 47, et n.
- Carbo, Caius, the orator, 44, 181, 428; remarks on, 430, 466, 493; death of, 334.
- Carbo, Cn. the consul, 153, et n.; an orator, 467.
- Carneades, the orator and philosopher, 155, 264, 266.
- Carvilius, S. punning anecdote of, 293.
- Castra, the conspirator, 112.
- Cascellius, M. 24.
- Cassius, the friend of Q. Cicero, 27, 40; his difficulties on the death of Cæsar, 90; holds Syria, 93; his military success, 96, 97.
- Cassius, Lucius, eloquence of, 428.
- Catienus, Titus, his character, 24, 25.
- Catiline, conspiracy of, 112, et n.
- Cato, C. the senator, 39, 42, 44; speech of, 50; nephew of Africanus, 431.
- Cato, Marcus, opposes the Agrarian law, 21; his life endangered, 29; inveighs against Pompey, 43, 44; sale of his gladiators and matadors, 49; repudiated by the consuls, 53; his influential position, 64; notices of, 206, 235, 420, 467; his definition of an orator, 244 n.; saying of, 302; his wit, 304; his great acquirements, 370; speeches of, 418, 426; a great orator, 419; his contemporary orators, 422.
- Catulus, Q. 71, 224, 467; his jest on Philippus, 296; his death, 334; remarks on, 438, 479.
- Causes in law, on the management and conducting of, 248—254; inquiry into the nature of, 257; two species of ignorantly stated, 258; arguments to be drawn from, 268; the points of to be pleaded, 309, 311; mode of conducting, 462.
- Cavillatio, meaning of the word, 283, n.
- Censorian laws, 17, et n.
- Censorinus, the friend of Q. Cicero, 27; remarks on, 472.
- Censuring, rules for, 325.
- Centumviri, a body of inferior judges, 187; their decisions, 188, 189, 190.
- Cethegus, M. C. eloquence of, 416; notices of, 417, 418.
- Cethegus, P. remarks on, 452.
- Charippus, an officer of Q. Cicero's, 8.

Character, foundations for dignity of, 10.
 Charges, various kinds of, 250, et seq.
 Charisius, notice of, 459.
 Charmadas, of Athens, 155, 156, 328; his speeches, 164—166.
 Chersonese, Roman armies in the, 110.
 Children, on disinheriting, 188, et n.
 Chilo, notice of, 67.
 Chors, meaning of, 299, n.
 Chrysippus, the philosopher, 80, 83, 156.
 CICERO, MARCUS TULLY, letters of, to his brother Quintus, 1—89; the occasions on which they were written, 1, 21, 30, 38, 52, 55, 66; his political position, 29; his numerous friends, 29; his impeachment threatened by Clodius, 29, 30; letter of, written while in exile at Thessalonica, 30; his lamentations while in exile, 30, et seq., 35; his letter to Atticus, 30, 31, et n.; his affection for his brother, 31, n.; commends his children to the care of his brother, 33; causes of his self-excitement, 36; the friends who are desirous of saving him, 36; had not been formally banished, though his house and villa had been seized, 38; recalled from exile, and recompense made for his losses, 38; his account of the proceedings in the senate-house, 39; his speech in the senate, 40; mentions the two younger Ciceros, 60; attacks Gabinius, 76; his numerous engagements, 77; defends Gabinius, 78, 79; his opinion of his own versification, 80; his works on the best form of government, 81; his ideas on writing poetry, 82, 85; vexations to which he is exposed, 82, 83; his letters to Brutus, 80—135; with introductory remarks, 90; his difficulties after the death of Cæsar, 90, 91; his son commended by Brutus, 93; his philippics, 93; his son, in military command under Brutus, 108, 109; opposes Antony, 124; the advice of Brutus to, as to the power of Octavius and Antony, 129—133; his epistle to Octavius, 136; his portraiture of the times, addressed to Octavius, 136—141; his Dialogues on the "Character of the Orator," 142, et seq.; course of municipal honours through which he passed, 143, et n.; the troubles in which he was at times engaged, 143; jest of, 300; his arrival at Rhodes, 402; his conference with Brutus and Pomponius on eminent orators, 404, et seq.; his literary and political career, 497, et seq.; the successor of Hortensius, 501.
 CICERO, QUINTUS, letters of his brother Marcus addressed to, 1, et seq.; occasions on which they were written, see ante; his command in Asia extended to a third year, 1; advantages of his position, 4; invested with high military authority, 5; his integrity, 6; everywhere admired for his virtues, 6; his lieutenants in Asia, 6; advice as to his duties, 7, 8; beneficial results of his wise government, 12, 13; advised to persevere in his good government, 15; his political virtues, 17; advised to regulate his temper, 18, 19; general advice to, 20; character of his associates, 23—25; hints on the selection of letters written to him, 26; re-ferred respecting his letters on the disposition of property, 26; his brother's complaints against his government of Asia Minor, 30; quits his government, and hastens to Rome, where his enemies were preparing to impeach him, 30, et n.; his brother's lamentations, 30, 31; appointed one of Pompey's commissioners in Sardinia, 41, et n.; goes to Gaul as one of Cæsar's lieutenants, 55; a resident of Britain, 65, 71; his houses and villas, 66, 67, 69, 71; his letters praised by his brother, 73; his rural matters, 77; education of his son, 78, 89; the Dialogues on Oratory, written at the request of, 142.

Cincian law, notices of the, 307, n.

Cincius, 47, 68; repartee of, 305.

Circumlutions, law of, 187, et n.

Circumstances, arguments to be drawn from, 268.

Circumveniri, punning on the word, 294, et n.

Citæ, the legal meaning, 210, n.

Cities, restoration of, in Asia Minor, 12.

Civil affairs, chief qualification for giving counsel in, 321.

Civil law, on the proper understanding of the, 195, et seq.; must be thoroughly studied by the orator, 182, 184; confusion arising from the ignorance of, 185, 186; delight in acquiring the knowledge of it, 194, 195, et seq.; changes in the, 196, et n.; the knowledge of, not always necessary in oratory, 212, 214, et seq.

Civili, explanation of, 158 n.

Claudicat, punning on the word, 293.

Claudius, A. eloquence of, 415, 431.; notices of, 482.

Claudii, 189.

Cleon, the orator, 409.

Clisthenes, oratory of, 409.

Clitomachus, 155.

Clodius, C. notices of, 448.

Clodius, L. tribune of the people, 2; the friend of Cicero, 91.

Clodius, Publius, threatens the impeachment of Cicero, 29, 30; his acts of despotism and cruelty, 39, 40; his speech in the senate, 40; obtains the tribuneship through the interest of Cæsar, 30; his various measures, 30;

- his bitterness, 36; his contests in the senate, 43, 44; his wish to obtain an embassy, 52, et n.; his letter to Cæsar noticed, 70.
- Cælius, S. impeachment and trial of, 50, 58.
- Co-heirs, Roman law of, 210.
- Collocation of words, 382.
- Colons, minute sentences, 447.
- Comitia, holding of the, 64, 58; brought to an interregnum, 86.
- Commagene, king of, 56.
- Common-places to be fixed in the memory, 269.
- Common things, eloquence of, 234.
- Comparative, two sorts of questions regarding the, 365.
- Comparison, a jest may be derived from, 300.
- Composition of words, 382.
- Confidence, in whom it should be placed, 8.
- Consequential, questions connected with the, 365.
- Consolation must be treated with eloquence, 234.
- Consuls, alienated from the cause of Cicero, 36; their absolute power, 53.
- Consulship, contests for the, 63, et n.; candidates for the, impeached for bribery, 76, 77; Messala elected to the, 88.
- Contested causes, difficulties of, 240.
- Contraries, arguments to be drawn from, 268.
- Copiousness of matter produces copiousness of language, 367.
- Coponius, M. 190, 260.
- Corax, 166; jests on the name, 334.
- Corculum, a surname of Scipio Nasica, 422, et n.
- Coriolanus, exile and death of, 412.
- Cornelia, the mother of the Gracchi, 463.
- Cornelius, C. the informer, 44.
- Cornelius, P. anecdote of, 301.
- Corruption, decree of the senate on the subject of, 48; prevalence of, at Rome, 63, 64.
- Coruncanus, T. wisdom of, 370; his eloquence, 415.
- Costume of speech, 178.
- Cotta, C. A. one of the personages of Cicero's Dialogues, 142, 149, 150, et seq.; expelled from office, 334; his faults of pronunciation, 344.
- Cotta, L. a skilful speaker, 423; remarks on, 440, 460, 479.
- Countenance, its importance in oratory, 398, 399.
- Country, love of, 195.
- Crassipes, the son-in-law of Cicero, 46, 47.
- Crassus, Justinianus, the friend of Cicero, 86.
- Crassus, Lucius L. one of the orators of Cicero's Dialogues, 142, 149, et seq.; his praises of oratory, 150; quæstor in Asia, 155, et n.; his oratorical accomplishments, 254; his witticisms against Brutus, 285, 286; jesting of, 299; witty sarcasm of, 304; his ingenious mode of examination, 306; his varied talents, 329, 330, 446; anecdote of, 336; his general views of eloquence, 337, et seq.; his great skill as an orator, 442; his skilful pleading, 437; his oration in defence of Curius, 478.
- Crassus, Marcus, the prætor, 184; his great acquirements, 471; his political power, 2; consulship of, 52.
- Crassus, P. 186, et n.; 211; wisdom of, 370; an orator of great merit, 428; notices of, 429; his high character, 487.
- Crebrius, notices of, 83.
- Criminal matters, modes of conducting, 250.
- Critias, writings of, 246, et n.; his learning and eloquence, 371, 409.
- Critolaus, the philosopher, 264, 265.
- Ctesiphon, 395, 396.
- Culleo, auction of his property, 41.
- Curio, C. the orator, 43, 44, 248, 432; his genius, 435, 436; the third best orator of his age, 463; his want of memory, 465; family of, 464; remarks on, 464, 465; his high character, 487.
- Curius, M. the friend of Cicero, 36, 190, 210, 284; eloquence of, 416.
- Curtius, a candidate for the tribuneship, 70.
- Cythereus, letter of, noticed, 110.
- Cynics, Antisthenes the founder of, 349.
- Cyrenaic philosophy, Aristippus the founder of, 349.
- Cyrus, the architect, 41.
- "Cyrus," of Xenophon, its objects, 12.
- DÆCRUS, P. style of, 432.
- Definition, meaning of the term, 193; how far useful, 251; the various disputes on, 365.
- Deliberations in cases of law, 250.
- Delivery, one of the essentials of an oration, 178 n.; manner of, the sole power in oratory, 395; Demosthenes' opinion of, 395; the voice materially contributes to its effectiveness, 359.
- Demades, the orator, 410.
- Demochares, the Greek writer, 247; notices of, 489.
- Democritus, the philosopher, 156; his followers, 153.
- Demosthenes, possessed of the utmost energy of eloquence, 165; his efforts to acquire perfection, 218; his opinion of the chief requisite of eloquence, 395; a complete orator, 410; style of, 435.
- Διαλεκτική, the art taught by Diogenes, 265.

Diligence, requisite for finding argument, 262; to be particularly cultivated, 262.

Dinarchus, the orator, 410.

Diogenes, the philosopher, 264, 265.

Dion of Syracuse, learning of, 371.

Dionysius, 236; a great intriguer, 59.

Dionysopolis, the people of, 24.

Diophanes, the eloquent Grecian, 430.

Diphilus, 66, 67.

Disposition, one of the parts of an oration, 178 n.

Disputation, manner of, among the Greeks, 164, et seq., 169; no kinds of, should be foreign to the orator, 368.

Dissimilarity, arguments to be drawn from, 268.

Dissimulation, joking similar to a sort of, 302.

Distortion of features, unworthy of an orator, 295.

Divisores, explanation of the term, 297 n.

Dolabella, kills Trebonius, 92; his career in Asia, 93; his oppressions, 97; defeated and slain, 110; reports respecting, 110.

Domitius Calvinus, 79.

Domitius, Cnæus, the prætor, 29, 58; consulship of, 55, 58, 63; his coalition with Memmius, 63 n.; befriended by Cicero, 72; impeached for bribery, 76, 77; commended by Brutus, 109; jest of Crassus against, 291 n.; remarks on, 448.

Domitius, L. notices of, 482.

Doubt, matters admitting of, how to be decided, 261.

Drusus, 142, 149; acquitted of prevarication, 64; his complaints against Philippus, 332.

Drusus, M. and C. the orators, 432, 467.

Duodecim Scriptis, the game so called, 203 n.

Dyrrhachium, 93, 96.

Ἔα πάρας, quoted by Cicero, 54.

Echion, the Greek painter, 420.

Egilius, witty repartee of, 304.

Εἰ δ' ἐν αἴῳ ἔζησας, quoted by Cicero, 54.

Elocution necessary in oratory, 342.

Eloquence, difficulty of acquiring the art of, 147; the praises of Crassus; in favour of, 150, 151; Scaevola's opinions on, opposed to those of Crassus, 152; the early Romans destitute of, 152; ancient laws, customs, &c. not established by, 153; saying of Socrates on, 159; connected with oratory, 163; consists in the art of speaking well, 164; of the Academicians, 164, et seq.; different from good speaking, 167; every branch of knowledge necessary to, 222; advantage of, 229; whether it is desirable? 232; of common things, 234; power of, mostly the same, 321; one and the same, in whatever regions of debate engaged, 338, 339; the different kinds of, 339, et seq.; the distinguishing title of, 346; power of, denominated wisdom, 347; the real power of, 353; various requisites for, 359, 391, et seq.; the greatest glory of, to exaggerate by embellishment, 362; wonderful love of, in Greece, 408; the house of Isocrates the school of, 409; the age when it flourished, 410, et seq.; the attendant of peace, &c. 413; what is the perfect character of, 459. See Oratory and Speaking.

Embassies, nature of, explained, 52.

Embellishment, one of the parts of an oration, 178 n.

Emotions of the mind, 272, et seq.; expressed on the countenance, 396; and by gestures, 398.

Empedoclea of Salust, 56.

Empedocles, 203.

Ennius, 181; an axiom of, 284; his "Annals," 416; remarks on, 417; notices of, 420, 421; death of, 422.

Entreaty, sometimes very advantageous, 322.

Epaminondas, talents of, 372; erudition of, 414.

Ephorus, the historian, 236.

Equity, sometimes the object of oratory, 178; on questions of, 260.

Eretrians, sect of, 349.

Evidence, to be given with great exactness, 233.

Exhortation must be treated with eloquence, 234.

Exile, letter written by Cicero in, 30; miseries of enumerated, 32; causes of, 36.

Exordium of a speech, 316—318.

Expectation, jokes contrary to, 206.

Expediency, how to be treated in oratory, 311.

Eyes, management of the, in oratory, 399.

FABIUS, C. 25.

Fabius Maximus, jest on, 302.

Fabius, S. the orator, 423.

Fabricius, the friend of Cicero, 36.

Fabricius, C. witticism of, 301; eloquence of, 415.

Facetiousness, good effect of, 322.

Facts, questions on the nature of, innumerable and intricate, 259; from the facts themselves, very few and clear, 259; statement of, in a speech, 319.

Fadius, the friend of Cicero, 36.

Fannii, Caii, the orators, 429.

Fannius, the annalist, 301.

Farmers of the revenue, 4; disputes among the, 5; on the just management of, 15, 16; wrongs committed by the, 16; released from some of the

- conditions of their contract, 22; their extortions in Syria, 50, et n.
- Favonius, 43.
- Fear, feelings of, 280; assumes a particular tone of voice, 397.
- Feelings to be worked on, 280.
- Felix, will of, left unsigned, 89.
- Festivals of Rome in December, 39, et n.
- Fimbria, C. notices of, 245, 438, 471.
- Flaccus, M. F. a tolerable orator, 431, 432.
- Flaminius, T. an accurate speaker, 432; remarks on, 479.
- Flavius, his disputed estate referred to Cicero, 110.
- Flavius, Cn. 192.
- Plavius, L. his interview with Cicero, 26, 27.
- Flood of waters at Rome, 84.
- Folly, witty, mode of exposing, 304.
- Formiæ in Campania, 9.
- Fortune not to be relied on so much as virtue and moderation, 4.
- Forum, affairs of the, 76.
- Friendship, professions of, to be guarded against, 8; especially among the Greeks, 9.
- Fufidius, 67; a tolerable pleader, 433.
- Fufius, L. 190, 345; remarks on, 467.
- Fulvius, the orator, 423.
- Fundanus, C. 26.
- Furius, L. 264.
- Furius, M. expelled from the Capitoline College, 47.
- Fusius, 245.
- GABINIAN law, 58.
- Gabinus, 29; proconsul of Syria, 51, et n.; governor of Syria, 58; prosecuted by different parties, 71, 75, 76; his unpopularity, 74; his conduct, 75; impeached for bribery, 77, 78; detested by all, 78; his acquittal, 78; Cicero not an advocate, but simply a witness respecting him, 87.
- Galba, C. notices of, 437.
- Galba, S. 153, 211; his tragic speech, 206; repartee of, 299; the best speaker of his age, 423; his successful pleadings, 425; his energetic defence against Libo, 426; inferiority of his written compositions, 427; remarks on, 492.
- Gallus, C. A. an able speaker, 445.
- Games, excessive taxation for supporting the, 13, et n.
- Gaul, commotions in, 2.
- Gauls, auxiliary forces from the, 119.
- Gellius, 39, 430; remarks on, 421.
- General, what he is, 200, 201.
- Genius, the great end of speaking, 171; requisite for finding argument, 262.
- Gesture, appropriate, ought to attend the emotions of the mind, 398.
- Glabrio, notices of, 39, 473.
- Glaucia, repartee of, 299; remarks on, 467.
- Glory of a great name, 20.
- Glycon, the physician of Pansa, 169.
- Good breeding essential to the orator, 161.
- Gorgias, the Leontine, 169; his universal knowledge, 368; a rhetorician, 409; an essayist, 413.
- Gorgonius, C. remarks on, 453.
- Government, precepts on the just administration of, 11, 12; beneficial results of, under Q. Cicero, 12; the sort of wisdom applied to, 164; nature of, should be known to the orator, 182.
- Gracchus, the augur, 41.
- Gracchus, Caius, his pitchpipe for regulating the voice, 400; genius of, 436.
- Gracchus, T. the Roman orator, 201, 422, 428; his effective delivery, 396; his death, 430.
- Grammarians, number of, who have excelled, 145.
- Granius, witticisms of, 292, 296, 305; anecdote of, 450.
- Gratidianus, M. 189, 449.
- Grutidius, the lieutenant of Q. Cicero, 6.
- Gratidius, M. notices of, 449.
- "Great Annals," the early records of Rome, 234.
- Greece, the studies and arts of, advantageous, 14; the seven wise men of, 371; her wonderful love of eloquence, 408; orators of, very ancient, 414.
- Greek, on the reading and study of, 236, 237.
- Greek orators, translations of, 18.
- Greek writers have produced their different styles in different ages, 246, 247; their varied abilities, 263.
- Greeks, their friendship to be guarded against, 9; their right to pay taxes, 16; complaints of the, 23; oratory of the, 148, 155; their manner of disputation, 164 et seq., 169; character of the, 226; their powers as writers of history, 234; their manner of teaching oratory, 242; objections to it, 243; some degree of learning and politeness among the, 359.
- Greeks of Asia Minor, 5, et n.
- Greville, punning on the name, 293, 294 n.
- Gutta, supported by Pompey, 86.
- HALICARNASSUS, in Asia Minor, 12.
- Hand, action of the, in oratory, 398.
- Hannibal, his opinion of Phormio's oration on the military art, 241.
- Harmony of words, 382, 383; of natural things, 384; of sounds, 390.
- Hatred, feelings of, 280.
- Hearers influenced by the different qualities of a speaker, 271.
- Hegesias, remarks on, 489.
- Hellanicus, the historian, 234.
- Helvetii, frequent inroads of the, 2.
- Hephestus of Apamea, 24.
- Heretum, the legal meaning, 210, et n.
- Hercules of Polyctetus, 239.

END OF SAMPLE TEXT

The Complete Text can be found on our CD:
Primary Literary Sources For Ancient Literature
which can be purchased on our Website :
www.Brainfly.net

or

by sending $64.95 in check or money order to :
Brainfly Inc.
5100 Garfield Ave. #46
Sacramento CA 95841-3839

TEACHER'S DISCOUNT:

If you are a TEACHER you can take advantage of our teacher's discount. Click on Teachers Discount on our website (www.Brainfly.net) or Send us $55.95 and we will send you a full copy of Primary Literary Sources For Ancient Literature AND our 5000 Classics CD (a collection of over 5000 classic works of literature in electronic format (.txt)) plus our Wholesale price list.

If you have any suggestions such as books you would like to see added to the collection or if you would like our wholesale prices list please send us an email to:

webcomments@brainfly.net